

To Whom it May Concern,

April 11, 2013

As an Achievement Coach for the Canyons School District, I have had the pleasure of knowing and working with Cassie Steiner during this 2012-2013 school year. She has been a tremendous asset to our school, Bell View Elementary, and I highly recommend Cassie for any teaching or leadership position.

I feel confident that Cassie possesses the skills, leadership, and dedication to succeed in any position. She has been teaching second grade this year at Bell View Elementary, and during the time that she has taught, she has demonstrated strong instructional skills in all areas. I have observed her during lessons and have seen her ability to engage students, get high rates of opportunities to respond, and create a positive learning environment.

Cassie has a unique ability to teach both students and adults, and is a very professional and articulate teacher. She has built strong relationships with her colleagues at Bell View and is highly respected and admired. She works collaboratively with her colleagues in Professional Learning Communities each week. During this time, Cassie is skilled at using data to make decisions to drive future instruction. She understands how to differentiate instruction for students that are struggling as well as challenge students who are excelling.

Cassie is constantly incorporating technology when she is teaching, and has become a strong leader at Bell View in modeling lessons that incorporate technology for other teachers. She has also been a leader in helping support teachers in obtaining technology grants so that the overall use of technology at Bell View has increased.

It is for these reasons that I offer high recommendations for Cassie without reservation. Her skills, desire to help students succeed, and dedication will make Cassie an asset in any teaching or leadership position. She is truly a talented and amazing individual. If you have any questions regarding this recommendation, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,
